

Abstract of the Disclosure

A pressure-sensitive tape for closing, sealing and gluing in house construction, with a backing layer on the upper side of the tape and with an adhesive layer, which is on the underside of the tape and provided with a protective film, which can be pulled off, the protective film having at least one slit in the longitudinal direction and the tape being folded upon itself along the slit in such a manner, that at least a portion of the protective film is disposed on the outside, and at least one lateral longitudinal section being provided, which is perforated.